Megan Brown

Dr. Megan Brown currently serves as an Assistant Professor of Christian Ministries at University of Northwestern, St. Paul. She is also the Director of Membership and Communication for the Society of Professors in Christian Education (SPCE). Dr. Brown earned a Ph.D. from Talbot School of Theology at Biola University, an M.Div. from Gardner-Webb School of Divinity, and a B.A. from Gardner-Webb University. She has spent over ten years serving in various ministry contexts, including children, youth, emerging adult, and women's ministry. Outside of academic teaching, she enjoys mentoring youth at her local church and conducting research. She has completed research related to emerging adulthood/Millennials, teaching and research methodologies, and women in academia and ministry. Her recent publications include articles on emerging adulthood and curricular contributions. She and her husband, Christoph, reside in Fridley, Minnesota with their young son, Josiah, and dog, Mo.

Jenna Thompson

Jenna Thompson serves as a Spiritual Formation Associate at the University of Northwestern – St. Paul. With eight years of experience in Student Life, Jenna values the integration of co-curricular educational experiences with classroom learning. She received a Masters of Spiritual Formation from George Fox Evangelical Seminary. She serves as an adjunct professor of Spiritual Formation at UNWSP. Her research interests are: female faith and leadership development, the spirituality of emerging adults, virtue development in higher education, and the intersection of evangelicalism and ecotheology. Jenna lives in Mounds View, Minnesota, with her husband, Nate, and her active toddler, Gwendolyn. She enjoys gardening, writing, and exploring all of the beauty Minnesota has to offer.
